Absorbing the Holocaust, With Help From Survivors

BY CAROL KINO

BARCELONA — A week seems to go by without a news story about the Holocaust. The recent film "The Pianist," which is about the life of Władysław Szpilman, the Polish pianist who survived Auschwitz, was screened at the Universitat Pompeu Fabra in Barcelona. The students in the class attended an event sponsored by the Jewish Heritage and Historical Studies Foundation.

Many viewers were moved by the film. One of them was a professor of history at the university, who said to his students, "This film is an important reminder of the tragedy of the Holocaust. It is a powerful tool for teaching about this event and for understanding its impact on our society." Another student, a sociology major, said, "I learned a lot from this film. It gave me a new perspective on the Holocaust and its effects on our world today."

The film is part of a larger effort to keep the memory of the Holocaust alive. The foundation that sponsored the event is one of many organizations working to commemorate the Holocaust and ensure that future generations never forget what happened.
